If the document doesn't exist, it is created. Is there a way for the function to wait until the user document is created? exports.postUserJob = functions.firestore .document('users/{userId}') .onCreate(async (snap, context) => { if (!snap.data.job) { return createUser(snap.data); } else { await createJob(snap.data); } }) A: The Firebase CLI might help you here. You can use the firebase functions

"Shi-Ho" Chinese New Year is just one of the hottest and most popular holidays in the world and also one of the very few holidays that has been adopted in a national way by China. Sunflower Seeds Oil is a natural source of vitamin E. Sunflower seeds are considered to be "nature's perfect food", are a powerhouse of nutrients, but are also a source of Omega-6 fats, essential fatty acids (EFAs), which are not produced by the body.. drrii,drri 2d92ce491b
