Gatwick Airport Limited is the airport owner, and its current director, Chris Kitchin, is a director of UK2000. With its nearest significant settlement at Crawley, Gatwick is a major (yearly traffic 14.7 million) international airport in East Sussex, and one of the UK's major airports. It is operated by Gatwick Airport Holdings Ltd. Gatwick Airport is one of the most important airports in the United Kingdom, and is the second-busiest airport in the UK in terms of passenger numbers. The airport is linked to London and the South East via the M23 motorway, and is on the route of the M25 and M23. It is served by domestic and international airlines. The airport is the second busiest airport in Great Britain in terms of arrivals and departures, and the only one that ranks in the top 10 airports in the world. In 2011 Gatwick Airport became the first UK airport to launch an Airport Taxi app that provides passengers and airport staff with a service to take them from the airport to points of interest in the local area and around the UK. The app has been downloaded over one million times. The app has become a leading smartphone app for the city and airport because it offers taxi operators a booking tool that allows them to provide a mobile app on their website. History Gatwick Airport opened on 5 September 1948, two years after the first civil airport in the UK opened at Luton, and three years after the first US commercial airport opened in Florida. It was originally a grass airfield (see photo) with an air terminal and a short runway, but was expanded considerably in 1953 with the building of the present air terminal, which was designed by Harold Mitchell. The runway is now wide and long and measures. At the time of opening the runway was concrete, and the first flight was a Ryan FRC with a crew of three. For many years the airport was used for charter operations. By 1962, the main runway was wide, and the airport had a terminal building. By the end of 1966 the airport had 12,000 passengers per week and the airport handled over 32,000 passengers in a week. The current runway was opened in 1969. Gatwick became one of the first airports to open in the UK to receive international flights, and it is the country's second busiest airport. In 1970, the airport handled more than 20,000 passengers, and by 1976 the capacity 2d92ce491b
