I see how that would be useful and I would likely be inclined to try it out. Quote: Originally Posted by rubgy rubgy Im with you on the NERO not loading. I ran the CD from the packaging and ran the checkdisk thing and it seems like a bad sector. Tried to boot from CD and get to the MFD but it hangs on the splash screen. It's only when it gets to the MFD that the system sounds begin to play. I've got it backed up with Acronis, but I don't know if I can restore from it. I've been working on this all day. I'd rather have a program I can't use. The older version had a networking configuration program (Panasonic Connect) but that's not in this version. What do I do? How can I recover my data from the hard drive. I'm on my Windows 7 x64 Pro. My former system was a x32 Pro. I'm with you on the NERO not loading.
