??(Chinese) – It was a cold winter afternoon in China when I came across a student in a university who was definitely not studying Japanese! She was studying Chinese instead. I looked through her textbook and asked her if she studied Japanese... to which she replied with “why?”. We talked for some time. She told me she had “taste” for Japanese language. I was wondering if she had ever seen or used a Japanese mobile phone or a Japanese smartphone. After a few minutes we talked about how the developer Japanese language and culture. I gave her a few important tips for studying Japanese. She was quite knowledgeable, being a university student but she lacked practice. I am sure my advice helped her a bit. I told her about my Japanese blog [where we try to cover a few words about a variety of topics every day, mostly with a few Japanese words. One of the readers who is also a Japanese student recommended the blog to me. While talking to her, I found out she didn't quite know what she wants to study in university. She told me she had an interest in Chinese Studies. I recommended her to study Chinese especially Japanese language 09e8f5149f
