What's New in the?

With the soothing tones of the ocean, you are free to enjoy your time away from the world for even longer. Relaxing Ocean Screensaver includes five scenes of the ocean with the sun's rays glistening on the water. The computer can be synchronized with the screen saver so that every time the screen saver cycles, a video is played. The playback can be cycled through the following options: one minute, five minutes, fifteen minutes, one hour, two hours, four hours or eight hours. You can also choose a different scene each time the screen saver goes through its cycle. Playback also includes an option of changing the sound of the waves to different sounds of the ocean, thus making the screen saver more relaxing. Ostrio Castle is a complex of Medieval European castles and fortresses built in the 12th and 13th centuries and located in the town of Ostrio, in Veneto, Italy. The word "Ostrio" derives from the Greek word "ostros" ("near the sea"). There are three Ostrian castles: The Ducal Castle, the Ponte Ferrante and the Castello Francesco Sforza. The Ponte Ferrante, the smallest one, was a military stronghold of the Venetians and a fortress of the Bembo family, who at that time held the important post of "Gonfaloniere del Venezia" (the Lord of the Venetian republic). As it dates from the thirteenth century, the oldest of the three Ostrian castles, the Ducal Castle, is a composite structure containing a tower, two baileys and two barbican castles. The castle is currently under state protection as a Monument of National Interest. The Ponte Ferrante (translation: "Peaceful Bridge") is a fortified building with a bell tower situated across the Garibaldini Canal and built in the fifteenth century by a Countess of Florence named Giacoma I Fortebraccio. The Castello Francesco Sforza (translation: "Francesco Sforza Castle"), which is the largest and most complex of the Ostrian fortifications, is situated on a rocky hill of Venetian origin. It has two floors, a large courtyard and a central bastion with a four-pointed tower and a crenellated parapet. The castle was built by Francesco Sforza, the nephew of Ludovico il Moro (translation: "King Ludovico of Milan"), in 1502, as a defensive garrison for the city and a symbol of Venetian power in the area. The three castles are only some of the many medieval fortifications located in the area. Most of them are in a very bad state of preservation and require urgent maintenance. To enjoy the water, I went to the sea to capture this beautiful view of the castle. Let
