I'm not sure if it's going to be compatible with my household setup (I have an A+ AC054 socket, which I think is 240V, and the shaver also says 240V). I've taken a power supply from a previous generation shaver that I had, which I'm pretty sure would work with this as well. Anyway, I plugged it in, and of course it doesn't work, as its current rating is set for 120V (it was recommended to me as being a 240V shaver, in that case). I tried to replace the power supply for that previous shaver, as I know you can interchange them. Now, the switch in this shaver seems to be combined with a good old push button, so there aren't any labels on any of the contacts, so I'm not even sure where to start. Any ideas on how to either replace the power supply, or to either identify which of the contacts are good for 240V, or what I should do about it, other than just keep returning it? A: I figured it out. The power supply was the incorrect type, so I just swapped it with the one from a previous shaver. {.337} {.338} {.339} {.340} {.341} {.342} 570a42141b
