Hide Images, like all Maxthon plugins, is created by the fellow developers. A few of their plugins are the Smoke Smell Remover, Hide Images Plug-in, and the Pill Search. The relationship between standard laboratory and whole blood measurements of bilirubin during phototherapy. Whole blood and serum measurements of bilirubin were determined simultaneously on 30 babies during continuous phototherapy for jaundice of various origins. The data were analysed by regression analysis and the equation of the regression line was used to predict the value of bilirubin in serum for a whole blood sample. The results of this study showed that the two methods agreed closely over the range of bilirubin concentrations studied. It was concluded that the bilirubin values in serum obtained by this method should be used in the management of jaundiced infants. and Roles?*** Describe your project in less than 150 words. Every project is different. I've created three different articles: > > > ----- sbinthree What are the benefits of using a framework over other language approaches (e.g. how are the ORM, job queue, and dependency injection benefits of using a framework)? ~~~ booleanism My experience is that a framework often comes with a much larger collection of libraries you must write yourself. Even if you later decide to migrate/transition to a different framework. If you just roll up your sleeves and start coding your own solution, you can have that solution be a lot more elegant than a framework. Plus, you'll typically learn a lot more than if you used a pre-made framework. ----- dbrown26 how do you handle deployment if your deployment machine runs linux and you wrote your app in windows? ~~~ bgibson Hmm, I hadn't considered this. As I understand it, all modern platforms (Linux, Mac, Windows) can run the same code. I think this means you should be able to build a Windows machine to run on any of those platforms (but probably not a
