One such linguistic phenomenon that adds depth to language structure is the causative verb. In this exploration, we will embark on a journey to understand the meaning of causative verb meaning in hindi, unraveling the layers of their significance and usage.

Understanding Causative Verbs:

Causative verbs play a pivotal role in linguistics by indicating the action of causing something to happen. In Hindi, causative verbs, known as "कारणीय क्रियाएँ" (kaaranee kriyaayein), serve to express the idea of causing an action rather than performing it directly. This linguistic concept adds versatility to sentence construction, enabling speakers to convey a broader range of meanings.

Formation of Causative Verbs in Hindi:

Causative verbs in Hindi are typically formed by using auxiliary verbs or causative particles. One common auxiliary verb employed for this purpose is "करना" (karna), meaning 'to do' or 'to make.' By combining this auxiliary verb with the infinitive form of the main verb, speakers create causative constructions. For example, "सोनिया ने बच्चों को खिलाया" (Soniya ne bachchon ko khilaya) translates to "Sonia made the children eat."
